SUCCESS AT PSL DATATRACK SEES APPOINTMENT OF FIRST APPRENTICE

PSL Datatrack's head office team has experienced further growth recently as the company has now taken on its first apprentice. Dean Manley has joined the team at PSL in a Marketing and Customer Service role, an appointment which has seen the business's staff count more than double since Geoff and Tara Gartland took over the company in 2013.

Dean's day-to-day duties will involve the development of the company's online marketing projects, including social media activity, promotion of the PSL Datatrack website and email campaigns, as well as helping to provide the high quality customer service that the business prides itself on. He joins a strong support team at PSL and will receive internal training from technically able colleagues, whose backgrounds include experience in Information Technology, engineering, accounting and business management. This will aid the completion of his apprenticeship with an external provider.

PSL Datatrack Director, Tara Gartland, comments: "Having Dean join the PSL team has already proved a real benefit to the company. I know he is looking forward to helping our customers more and to meeting the challenges of his apprenticeship training over the coming months."
